

```
char st[10];
scanf("%s", st);
```

Why not &st?

st is the array identifier and also a pointer to the first element in the array. Hence, st is already an address.